Junior Final Series – Issue 3, August 19th 2018

By MATTHEW DUCK

Last week's events involving Andrew Gaff drew significant attention and public commentary. From the moment Gaff struck Andrew Brayshaw until days after the subsequent tribunal hearing, opinion varied on what was an appropriate penalty for the act.

Some (namely the West Coast Eagles FC) suggested that given Gaff's clean history, a 3-week suspension was appropriate. Others argued that the offence warranted a 6-8 week penalty, whilst many believed that the action deserved no less than a 12-week suspension, if not more.

In the Gaff instance, the tribunal had the luxury of vision. The video meant that there could be no doubt about who was involved, where the incident occurred, or when it occurred. However, questions still remained: what was Gaff's intent? Did he mean to strike Brayshaw to the jaw or to the chest? Did Brayshaw lower his position slightly just before he was struck? And if he did, should that carry any relevance?

If nothing else, the debate about what the appropriate sanction was and the array of questions that remained despite clear vision of the incident illustrated just how challenging a job it can be for an AFL tribunal, let alone for a community league tribunal that oftentimes does not have the benefit of video footage.

Like most local football league independent tribunals, in the absence of video footage the WRFL's panel members rely on their collective experience. Made up of solicitors, police officers, professional investigators etc., the panel seeks to find the 'truth' from what are sometimes widely varying accounts of the same alleged incident. They do their best under trying circumstances.

On-field incidents have decreased significantly over the past 20 years. Behind-the-ball incidents in particular have absolutely no place in our game, and the tribunal many years ago made a conscious effort to do all within its power to stamp out such actions. Today, only one in every 26 matches features a report that results in an independent tribunal hearing, a marked decrease from years gone by. That said, this figure can still be much better.

The WRFL will continue to benchmark and look for ways to make the independent tribunal as effective as it can possibly be. This ranges from filming more matches, providing greater education on several levels, bolstering the panels with high-calibre personnel etc. But from time to time, when a serious incident occurs, we often hear that 'the league needs to fix it'; 'the league' commonly meaning the half dozen people in the WRFL office, and 'fix it' commonly meaning the independent tribunal issuing penalties. And that's undoubtedly part of it – those at league HQ and the independent tribunal play a critical role in cultural & behavioural movement. But relying on a 3-person tribunal panel to be the sole custodian of all things disciplinary is never going to get us to where we want to go. In a league of 8000+ members, we all play a small part.

I wish the very best of luck to all competing today, whether in a Grand Final or a lead-up final. I look forward to seeing you at the footy.

UMPIRES CORNER

WRFL UMPIRES PREPARE FOR JUNIOR GRAND FINALS

By GRAEME HODGART

The junior finals are practically over and the senior finals are just around the corner. The umpiring group has a few little markers that signal the threshold to the finals. Firstly, there are the raised eyebrows. These are caused by the appearance at training of some umpires that have rarely been sighted all season. Their presence does not escape the attention of others. "Good to see you, Davo. It must be finals' time!"

Secondly, there are the raised elbows. Out on the training track there is always talk of taking out other umpires who are vying for the same position on an umpiring panel. Generally this refers to several umpires raising their elbows as they run past another group of umpires. It is all done with good humour.

Thirdly, there are those that 'raise the bar' as the finals progress. The umpiring uniform, once slightly shabby and grubby, is now clean and ironed. Boots and runners that were not touched from one game to another are aired, are cleaned immaculately. Tardiness to training and games are a thing of the past. They are now first there!

Finals can be a great time, but it also has its down side. Every team cannot be a winner and many with great potential and expectations fall by the wayside until there is only one left. They are victorious and in the midst of their excited triumph they are able to lift the premiership cup.

There may be only one winning team, but there are six, seven, or eight others that have been unable to go the full distance and win. The umpiring fraternity is exactly the same. Not every umpire will get to the treasured spot in Finals and Grand Finals. Many will fall away due to inexperience, shortage of talent, lack of fitness, injury or some other reason.

Here's hoping that the participation of all players, officials and umpires this weekend is celebrated in a positive manner. They say that winners are grinners, but to be simply involved in our great game, even as a small bit player (or umpire) in the WRFL, is an experience that can instil many great attributes such as confidence, determination, commitment, knowledge, camaraderie, maturity and other life skills.

QUIZ

A player runs with the ball for five metres and handpasses it up in the air, grabs the ball before it bounces and then runs another ten metres before kicking the ball. What happens next?

- (a) The player is penalised for holding the ball.
- (b) The field umpire allows the play to continue.
- (c) The player is penalised for incorrect disposal.

The correct answer is (b). See LAW 15.2.2
