

YOUR RIGHT TO ENJOY FOOTY

Playing footy is an experience that should be fun. You should be able to make friends, learn and grow, and enjoy everything that a team sports has to offer. You also have a right to be treated properly so that going to training, games or other trips with your club are happy experiences.

That means that if someone is doing something that stops you from enjoying being at footy, you also have the right to speak up and tell someone.

WHAT SHOULD I SPEAK UP ABOUT?

- Bullying
- Violence
- Being picked on or left out because of your skin colour, religions or something else.
- Someone posting photos or comments about you online
- Someone at the club making you feel uncomfortable or unwelcome
- Parents on the sideline saying hurtful things to you
- Someone touching you in a way that makes you feel uncomfortable
- Anything else that bothers you enough to enjoy footy less

WHO SHOULD I TELL?

You should speak up to someone you feel comfortable telling, and who you trust. There are several people you can talk to about a problem, such as:

- Your parents
- Your coach
- Your team manager
- The club president or administrator
- The club Child Safety Officer (this person
 - is trained in how to help you with these problems, and know who to go to if it
 - is a serious issue)

You should also speak up about other things that change your experience playing football. If you think that your team or club has made a choice that is unfair, or you have idea for how something can be done to make footy more enjoyable for you and your friends, it is important you say something. Footy is your game too, and you have a right to tell someone what you think and feel about how it is run.
